THE SURE THING

WHEN CHICAGO DESIGNERS NEED INSTANT STYLE, THESE ARE THEIR FAVORITE WAYS TO GET IT

— Barbara Ballinger

JOHN CIALONE

Design director,
Tom Stringer Design Partners

Cialone's obsession of the moment: Philip Jeffries' AFRICANA TEXTURED GRASSCLOTH wallcovering in indigo blue against a crisp white background. "It's a great way to turn a boring room into an exotic oasis." In a powder room, he would combine the paper with wood trim and ceiling painted a dark ink-blue. Paired with brass fixtures, accessories and a punched metal Moroccan lantern, the bathroom goes from simple to fascinating.

MICHAEL DEL PIERO

Designer, Michael Del Piero
Good Design

Del Piero loves her own LAKE FOREST DAYBED "because it's flexible and can be used in an entry, bedroom or living room. When used in a living room, the daybed can be made up easily for overnight guests." Fabricated with steel legs and a bronze finish, the base is fabric covered and wrapped with a cushion; at 94 inches long, it's a supporting player that can also make a statement.

JULIE HACKER, STUART COHEN

Partners, Stuart Cohen and Julie Hacker
Architects

Hacker, a triathlete, loves her CERVELO RACING BICYCLE "The profile, details and arrangement of parts visually communicate the essence of effortless forward motion." Cohen loves WILLIAM MORRIS WALLPAPERS. "In the early 1970s, I covered all the walls of a house in the woods in Morris' 'foliage' paper so they would mimic the view out the windows." Today "we have three Morris wallpapers in our home."
